Are there any additional thoughts or considerations to any of these questions you would like to comment on? (Optional)

With regards to the marijuana question - if the person was a legal user of marijuana I would support that. However, just like with alcohol, if they are under the influence they would not be allowed to possess a weapon (cannot possess a weapon while under the influence). If the person is an illegal user of any drug or medication, they should not be allowed to possess a weapon.

With regards to the taxing questions - this state is due for a major tax reform with public input. If it were deemed necessary to place increased taxes on firearms and ammunition, I would support it. However, that would be after public hearings.

With regards to red flag laws - they can be beneficial in helping those in immediate danger. However, as a police officer I have learned people will make complaints against others to get them in trouble. Any red flag law has serious concerns of being used improperly or without merit and needs to be written and implemented carefully to ensure those who need protecting are protecting and the rights of the weapon owners are maintained.

With regards to background checks - the State Bureau of Criminal Identification has the ability to very quickly allow for a person to call in and get a yes or no on whether the sale to the person is legal or not. We need to use this to ensure those who are not allowed to have guns do not get guns.
